

Rapid City, SD-- Three new members were appointed to the Board of Directors of Defenders of the Black Hills: Brenda Parsons, Exmouth, England; Harley Eagle, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada; and Harold One Feather, Standing Rock Reservation.

Brenda Parsons, is the Founder and Coordinator of Lakota Aid Foundation, who also raises funds to assist the organization.

Harley Eagle, a Dakota from Canada, works for the Mennonite Central Committee as their Indigenous Nations Liaison, is one of the founding members of Defenders, and has helped the organization since the beginning in 2002.

Harold One Feather, from the Standing Rock Reservation, has been actively involved with Defenders since 2003 when he and a number of other people, brought the uranium issues affecting the Grand River, to the organization.

Other members on the Board are Brian Brademeyer, Native Ecosystems Council; Charmaine White Face, from the Pine Ridge Reservation; and Clifford White Eyes, Sr., from the Rosebud Reservation. Charmaine White Face, one of the founders, has been the Coordinator for the organization for the past seven and a half years, will remain on the Board but will be concentrating her efforts on her appointment as Spokesperson for the Teton Sioux Nation Treaty Council. Brian Brademeyer, current Treasurer and also another cofounder, will assume the duties as Acting Coordinator effective Jan. 15, 2010.
